

2004 U.S. Export Administration Regulations

The 2004 edition of the Export Administration Regulations (EAR) provides exporters with the latest rules controlling the export of U.S. dual-use commodities, technology, and software. Step by step, the EAR explains:

- When an export license is necessary and when it is not
- How to obtain an export license
- Policy changes as they are issued
- New restrictions on exports to certain countries and certain types of items
- Where to obtain further help

Looseleaf, CD-ROM, Online, and Now E-Mail Updates

Looseleaf – For $150* a year, you get the EAR Base Manual plus three bulletin updates.

CD-ROM – For $140* a year, you get four quarterly update issues. Features full search and bookmark capability to locate specific data ... eliminates time-consuming manual maintenance ... and allows you to print and download parts of the EAR as you wish.

Online – For $290 a year, you have access to new and revised regulations after their being published in the Federal Register. This Web-based service also features full search capability plus access to the Prohibited Parties Database for screening your export order prior to shipment. You can order this service online at <http://bxa.fedworld.gov>.

E-mail notification of updates – For $115 per year you can have NTIS notify you by e-mail each time the EAR is updated by the Bureau of Industry and Security. This service is advised for subscribers to the CD-ROM or paper copy EAR who otherwise won't learn of changes to the EAR until the next quarterly update. (This service is already included as part of the Online subscription.)

* Domestic pricing for shipping to addresses within the U.S., Canada, and Mexico only. See reverse side for international pricing information.
